Diplomatic and international updates

- Russia has imposed a “counter-terrorism operations” regime in Kursk, Belgorod, and Bryansk regions bordering Ukraine. This allows authorities to restrict movements, use phone tapping, and implement other security measures (BBC).
- Evacuations continue to take place in Kursk region, around 76,000 people have been evacuated since the attack and officials said that this needs to be as fast as possible.
- The crucial thing is the fighting going on in Kursk region is close to nuclear power plant so, UN’s International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has urged Ukraine and Russia both to limit their fighting over that region, cause this can be a threat to humanity of whole world.

Conclusion

The conflict has entered a new phase with Ukraine's acknowledged offensive into Russian territory. The international community remains concerned about the potential for escalation, particularly regarding nuclear facilities in the region.
